AGILE SOFTWARE FACTORY

ENABLE YOUR BUSINESS TO INNOVATE FASTER

Digital transformation is driving businesses to demand more and more from their technology teams. Unfortunately, many companies are not built innovate quickly and rely on monolithic systems, legacy waterfall processes, and far too much manual work.

As a result, these organizations are delivering solutions that suffer from:
- Diminished business value due to features and functionality delivered at a pace that is too slow to meet demands
- Software defects found late in the development cycle
- Lower customer and employee satisfaction
- Increase in security vulnerabilities

Many times leaders may think the only solution to the problem is to spend heavily on new technology, hiring people, or turning to a subcontractor to take over the mess. While spendiing money on these things may help, it may not always be possible due to an organization's budget and is not always necessary.

By adopting a culture and mindset driven by Lean/Agile principles, an organization can fix a lot of its development problems. We've created the Sirius Agile Software Factory to help businesses better understand these principles and develop a roadmap that is more likely to succeed.

Our Agile Software Factory focuses on infusing Lean-Agile principles into a company's culture, organizational design, funding, and flow of work while applying DevSecOps automation and containerization technology and best practices.

Ready to learn more? Our digital transformation experts can help you target your development issues so you can go to market more securely and efficiently with less risk to fail.
